Mobile data for local causes
Join a growing community that acts on issues that matter

Civique is made by people: requesters and contributors who create and participate in challenges.

Challenges are mobile data collection initiatives that inform local civic causes. Photos, opinions, locations can all be gathered.

Requesters are cities and organizations that create challenges on topics that matter to citizens and communities. Civique helps them document their cause, make sense of their data, and engage with people.

Contributors join challenges via our mobile app, documenting issues, creating content, answering questions, and taking actions.
